A winter staycation

Last weekend, a number of events were held in Onanole and at Riding Mountain National Park to celebrate Hockey Day in Canada.

While the nature photography workshop was a weekend favourite, I checked out the quinzees and tent where four people had spent the night. Shelley and Darryl Neustater had just finished breakfast when I whistled, asking to be let in to their tent. Their set up was positively roomy, with heat to spare, provided by a packable wood stove neatly set up along the side wall. They camp comfortably throughout the winter, walking to places inside and outside the park.

Not including the Onanole Hockey Tournament and the Annual Cabin Fever Social, over 100 people participated in activities inside the park including birding and cross country ski wax workshops, a winter camping demo, and the perennial favourite. Beaver Tails. Says George Hartlen of the Friends of Riding Mountain National Park, "We had many happy and very sticky children and adults come by the Learning Centre!"

Generating Momentum for our World "Food For All"

Over 60 students from 11 schools participated.
